A Scene In "Way Down East."

AMUSEMENTS.

"TWO MARRIED MEN" TO-NIGHT.

The special prices of 25, 35 and 50 cents, for that excruciatingly funny farce comedy, "Two Married Men," should pack the Grand to-night. This company was here last season and was highly enjoyed by a good audience. The specialties alone are worth the admission price. If you want to laugh, see "Two Married Men."

"WAY DOWN EAST."

"Way Down East," the play that has prompted unstinted and enthusiastic praise from clergy, school teachers, women, and, in fact, people in every walk of life, including thousands who are seldom seen inside the walls of a theatre, is to be presented for a matinee and night performance at the Grand on next Saturday, Jan. 11th. The scene of the action is a New Hampshire farm, the play being from the pen of Lottie Blair Parker, elaborated by Jos. R. Grismer and the entire production under the direction of Mr. Wm. A. Brady. The piece is made up of a series of happenings, designed to portray the simplicity, comedy and tragedy of a community, the purity and sweetness of which might run uninterrupted forever, but for the casting across of the shadows of the wicked city. This comes in the form of the cultivated city man with more money than morals, who has ruined a confiding rural lass under guise of a mock marriage. Homeless, she seeks the shelter of a household where the ruling spirit is a well-meaning country squire, whose religion prompts him to drive forth the helpless Magdalen, lest she contaminate his own precious son to whom the sins of the world are somewhat unknown. The son loving the unfortunate girl for her sweetness of character follows her out, rescues her from death in the winter storm, and the father, overcome by repentant remorse, forgives and blesses. There are variations of refreshing and humorous sort which relieve the play of a somber setting and makes the spectator feel the lesson is being administered in pleasing homeopathic doses. For over two years this play had a prosperous career in New York, and will no doubt repeat its success during its engagement in this city.

The sale of boxes and seats for the "Way Down East" will be placed on sale Thursday morning at 8 o'clock. Following are the prices: Matinee—Lower Floor, 50 cents, Balcony and Gallery, 25 cents. Night—Lower floor, $1; Balcony, 50 and 75 cents.

SPECIAL MATINEE OF "WAY DOWN EAST."

Manager Porter has arranged for a special matinee production of "Way Down East," on next Saturday, to accommodate those who cannot attend the night performance. Persons residing in Millersburg and Carlisle, may attend the performance and arrive home in time for supper. Seats may be reserved for the matinee, and the prices will be 50 cents for the lower floor, 25 cents for balcony and gallery. This is in the nature of a treat for lovers of what is pure and clean in the drama, as "Way Down East" is recognized as one of the purest and most successful plays ever written. Seats may be secured Thursday morning by mail or telephone 440.

THE BEST AUTHORITY.

They say that worldly goods and gauds
Are all that's "worth the while;"
They say that romance is out of date,
And love is out of style;
They say a bright girl's gems
Will solace any thrice;
But Philip, blue-eyed Philip,
He does not tell me so.

They say that lovers' strongest vows
Have proved but brittle things,
That Love must fly, since Art portrays
The little god with wings;
That youth's fond fancies quickly fade,
That men inconstant grow;
But Philip, faithful Philip,
He does not tell me so.

They say that one should only think
Of lofty birth and place;
They say it makes one thrill with pride
To set the social pace;
They say a cottage on the green
Must be forlorn and slow;
But Philip, ardent Philip,
He does not tell me so.

I let them prate of pride and pelf,
I care not what they say,
O heart of mine! to-morrow's sun
Shall light our wedding day.
Within our cottage, Love, content,
Shall ever bide, I know;
For Philip, dearest Philip,
He says it shall be so.

THE JOKE OF ROBERT WILKINS.

By D. H. Talmadge.

ROBERT WILKINS was born with a penchant, if you know what that is, for practical jokes. His career from the moment when his delighted parents had learned of his sex (they had expected a girl), was a series of jokes. He is not, therefore, to be judged harshly. He is not to blame. Some remote and accused ancestor, who, perhaps, pursued practical jokery as a fad, must be accountable.

Let it be distinctly understood that I pen these words in a charitable spirit. No one, unless it be his mother, can love Robert Wilkins more fervently than I love him. From the sandy curls which crown his round little head to the callouses upon his feet he inspires the best affection of my nature. I admit that I am sorry for him. I tremble for him. At intervals I pray for him. I forgive him everything. But I cannot forget.

I have been looking over a journal upon which I tested my strength of character during the greater portion of the 12 months which closed the nineteenth century, and I am much impressed by the frequency with which references occur therein to Robert Wilkins. It appears that Robert Wilkins was very active during that period, more so, in truth, than he is at present. He is older now, and he is slowly learning certain things that are good for him to know.

A peculiar feature of these references to Robert Wilkins in my journal is their apparent foreignness—if I may be permitted to use the word—to Robert Wilkins. They would not suggest Robert Wilkins to a stranger. For instance, in September I found this somewhat important record:

"Took four bellflower apples to the county fair. They were the entire yield of the tree which I obtained from the traveling agent of the snake eyes. I had not much confidence in him, but I bought one tree. He swore upon his honor that it would bear apples as big as Hubbard squashes—small Hubbard squashes, of course—in two years. He was guilty of falsehood. The tree bore nothing but leaves the second year and the third. I was absent from home this spring while the buds were blowing. When I returned I merely gave the tree a cursory glance, and muttered a sentiment appropriate to the memory of an absent liar. I thought no more of it. I went not near it. I do not permit wrongs to rankle in my breast. But on the day when we had been getting together our exhibits for the fair, my wife addressed me on the subject of apples. She stated, with a fine semblance of concern for my welfare, that neighbor Johnson had been boasting of his ability to surpass any other raiser of apples in the county, the fruit to be the proof; that not only had he taken first premium on bellflowers last year and the year before, but he was going to take it again this year. 'And,' concluded she, looking quite fierce, 'he said that folks who had the same kind of ground he had, and the same conditions (Johnson's orchard and mine are separated by only a thin board fence), and couldn't raise as good apples as he raises, were pretty poor sticks of fruit-growers.' I will not deny that I was vexed. It is not in human nature to enjoy that sort of thing. And I agreed readily when the dear woman suggested that we go down to the orchard and see what we could find. We returned in the gloaming an hour later, filled with elation. In the long grass beneath the malignant bellflower tree we found four of the most beautiful apples I had ever seen of pleasure to look upon. They were magnificent. We proudly took them to the fair. The judges awarded them the first premium. Our sleep will be very sweet to-night."

The events of the two days succeeding this pleasing record do not appear in the journal. As I remember it, my mind during those two days was taken up completely by thoughts of other things. The prophecy with which the record closes was not fulfilled. I am not a good prophet. I never was. I cannot even forecast with any degree of accuracy the sort of weather betokened by a red sunset streaked with green.

Our sleep was not very sweet that night. My wife had been over to Johnson's for a chat while I had been writing my journal, and when she returned the whitewinged dove of peace went hence. There were tears in the blessed woman's eyes and her lower lip trembled.

"Such a time as I have had!" she cried. "Never have I been so tempted to let down the bars of temper! Land!"

"Yes?" I said, smiling.

"What do you think?" she went on after an interval of labored breathing. "Mrs. Johnson insinuates—she does not say outright, for she does not dare—that we stole those bellflowers."

"Stole them!" I gasped. "From whom does she say we stole them?"

"From Mr. Johnson. She says that the choicest specimens upon their bellflower tree were stolen, and she says that they looked precisely like those taken to the fair by us. In fact, she says, Mr. Johnson is almost willing to take his oath they were the same."

I laughed somewhat hollowly. I did not mean to laugh hollowly, but I could not help it. From the moment when we had found those bellflowers beneath that unfortunate tree I had not been easy in my mind. My conscience had not been affected, but my intellect had evinced a mild tendency to nausea. The tree had never justified the confidence we so suddenly reposed in it. We had not seen the apples upon the branches. But we had not looked for them. The tree was not in plain sight from the beaten path.

I looked at my wife and she looked at me and we were silent for a long time. At length I spoke.

"My dear," said I, "you led me straight to the spot where those apples were. How did you happen to do so?"

"I knew they were there," she replied frankly, "although I thought they were upon the tree. Robbie told me."

"Ah-h-h!" I exclaimed.

I am not certain that my tone was of the curdling sort, but I am certain that for an instant I went sour. There came over me in that instant a glare of light, making all things plain. Robert Wilkins had been up to his jokes again. His humorous instinct had led him to despoil the bellflower tree of the boaster Johnson that the cravings for first premiums in our meek and lowly hearts might be appeased. He had, to use an idiom of the mining country, salted our poor, old, barren bellflower tree, and victimized not only his father and his mother, but the whole of Rasher county.

It is fortunate that Robert Wilkins was not within reach of my arm as this revelation poured in upon me—fortunate for Robert Wilkins and for us. I very much fear that, had such been the case, punishment of the sort from which cometh red spots and smarting would have been meted out to him with the liberality which ever betokens an absence of deliberation.

And my wife, as each blow fell, would have shuddered, and I would have seen again the vision of a tiny white faced child lying upon a bed with the lights and shadows of the other world playing over his wasted little frame. Robert Wilkins will never know—not, at least, until he has children of his own—how many times that vision has come between him and unthinking vengeance. How blessings cluster upon the cross of sorrow!

"My dear," said I, "to put it plainly, we are in a fix. Robert Wilkins put those apples beneath that tree. I doubt not that he fled them from Johnson's orchard."

"I will never believe it," returned my wife. And she never will, though the evidence be piled before her mountain high. It is her idea of being faithful, and I would not have her otherwise. There is a comfort not to be valued lightly in the consciousness that one person among the millions will ever refuse to believe one's accusers. I did not pursue the subject.

She went about her household duties and I sat quietly pondering. It was a vexatious question. I could not see plainly the way out. To clear myself would incriminate Robert Wilkins, and I did not wish to incriminate Robert Wilkins. I understood perfectly that Robert Wilkins had been actuated in the matter by a spirit of pure fun. I hold to the theory that a boy should be punished only for his bad intentions; but that he should be forced to a wholesome realization of the consequences accruing from his act. I hold that indiscriminate punishment produces liars. I abhor liars above thieves. Robert Wilkins, in this instance, had no bad intentions. I satisfied myself fully upon this point before continuing my pondering, and it made me feel better.

I took it for granted that Johnson was disseminating his suspicions throughout the community. He is that sort of a man. He and I have never agreed on the liquor question nor the tariff question nor the question of raising boys. I have told Robert Wilkins to stand up to George Johnson attempted to bully him. On sunny occasions I have bade George Johnson depart from our plantation, and I am constrained to think that he has carried to his father what are known in light-minded circles as fish-stories. At any rate, the relations existing between Johnson and myself are not to be likened to those between David and Jonathan. We speak as we pass by, but we are not cordial. We depend upon our wives to find out mean things about each other.

Robert Wilkins, goaded by hunger, came into the room presently, hanging his cap, after a way he has, upon a figure resembling a hook in the carpet. I called him to me, looking him full in the eyes. His gaze did not waver. I was disappointed. I had expected him to flush and to evince evidence of perturbation, thus affording me an opening for a lecture I had in mind to deliver. As it was, I said nothing beyond asking a few questions relative to the day's doings.

The premium committee waited upon me the following morning. They suggested, with numerous scrapings of the throat, that I show cause why I should not be called upon to explain the charges against me. My suspicions were thus early verified. Johnson had been at work. And Robert Wilkins, as I learned later, chanced to overhear the committee and myself discussing the matter.

That evening, when I went to the barn to do my chores, he followed me, and confessed to putting the apples beneath the tree. I tried to assume an attitude of severity. I failed. He had thrown himself upon the mercy of the court, and the court had been a boy once its ridiculous, mushy old self; it also had inherited a tendency to practical jokiness from a remote and accused ancestor. It was in the mood that forgives.

I placed my hand lightly upon the head of Robert Wilkins and the grimy little hand of Robert Wilkins crept into mine. We talked the thing over, man to man, or boy to boy, just as you choose to see it. The shades of night drew down and the kine bellowed for attention. The warbling of the swine sounded shrill from the yard behind the barn.

"The joker who gives must take," I said in the course of my remarks to Robert Wilkins. "That premium belongs to Mr. Johnson. Mr. Johnson must have it, and that is where the joke turns upon the joker. We must explain it, grinning as cheerfully as we may, or be held up as thieves. A joke that imperils a good name is not a good joke."

An expression of bewilderment appeared upon the boy's face. "Mr. Johnson," he said haltingly, "Mr. Johnson—what's he got to do about it? George told me more 'n a week ago he'd left the gate to the orchard open and the cows had got in and eat all his father's bellflower apples."

"Then where did you sit—get the apples you placed beneath our tree?"

"Raised 'em," replied Robert Wilkins, "on a tree Uncle Wil gave me. I set it out down at the far end of the back lot, and I tended it, and I thought it'd be a dandy joke to play on you and mother to put the apples that grew on it this year where you'd think they'd dropped off of that tree you felt so bad about because you'd been deceived in it. And it was a dandy joke too, till those men come sayin' they'd found out you hadn't raised the apples and had got to give back the premium. Then I thought I'd been too funny."

"Too funny!" O Robert Wilkins, my son! Although I suspected thee, thank Heaven I did not accuse thee! My wife, coming to the barn to ascertain the cause of our delay, caught Robert Wilkins and me in the very act of dancing like Hottentots. She said I should have been ashamed of myself, great big boy of almost 40 years that I was, to conduct myself so outlandishly with Robert Wilkins. Robert Wilkins needed no encouragement in savagery, she said. Perhaps she was right, but I do not think she meant it, for when I told her where Robert Wilkins had obtained the apples she departed herself like a young gazelle turned out to spring grass. I was quite shocked.

The barn work done, we went back through the gathering damps, the songs of the night birds finding ready response in our hearts, to our humble meal. My wife beamed upon Robert Wilkins across the table, and then upon me.

"My dear," she said softly, "I told you so."

"You did," I admitted with more promptness than I usually manifested when she made use of that unhappy expression. "I shall see the premium committee in the morning. I shall—"

I hesitated, listening. In at the open window came a sound of lugubrious wailing, distant but distinct.

"George Johnson left the orchard gate open again this afternoon," said Robert Wilkins gravely, "and his father's wallop in him. Him lied out of it the other time."

My wife made no comment in words, but she arose hastily and closed the window.—Young People.

The Lesser Evil.

"You mark my words," cried the beautiful girl's mother, with the truculent pessimism peculiar to age, "so sure as you take this step you will 'repent at leisure'—"

"Oh, hang it! I must put up with that," answered the pretty one, pettishly. "Even that would be preferable to contemplating some other woman repenting at leisure with him."—Sporting Times.

A STRANGE CASE.

Chicago Man Loses His Memory and at Last Finds Himself in Dental College at Atlanta, Ga.

After wandering for six weeks with no recollection of his own identity, Will T. White, of 66 Rush street, Chicago, recovered his memory and found himself in Atlanta, Ga., a student in a dental college.

He had regained his recollection of everything up to the time of his disappearance, but the intervening period of nearly two months at the same time became a blank to him, and Mr. White does not know how he went to Atlanta or how he obtained the money to pay his expenses at the dental college there.

White was employed in Chicago in the office of Dennison & Co., manufacturing chemists. He left the office on Saturday morning with 87 cents in his pocket and wearing no overcoat. His week's salary was due that evening, but he did not draw it.

His wife instituted a search for him, but in vain, and then she decided to wait, confident of his return. For a few years ago, Mr. White had a similar experience. He disappeared and was found in New York trying to get work by which he could pay his expenses in a dental college.

Mrs. White went to live with Louisville relatives several weeks ago, and the reuniting of the family took place there.

ENGLAND TAKING UP SKAT.

This Game of the German Students Is Likely to Become Very Popular.

Every two or three years the smart set of London goes mad over some new amusement. Five or six years ago it was skating on real ice, which, for the matter of that, is still very popular. Then came the war. The young men went to the front and the women followed them, at a safe distance. The talk was all about hospital ships, lint and bandages and the delights of nursing pale, interesting soldiers.

A reaction set in and society began to learn bridge and play it feverishly. No more talk of the war. Last season the craze reached its height. Luncheon parties were made up, after which bridge for high stakes went on, with a pause for dinner, into the small hours.

Now a new game, new at least to England—namely, skat, the great game of the German corps student—is being introduced into England. It looks as if it would be taken to kindly in society circles. As pique is considered the best game for two, whist for four and poker for five, so skat is the most interesting game for three.

Lose by Acting in London.

Nat Goodwin addressed the Playgoers' club at London the other night on the subject of "The American Invasion." He said that there was reciprocity between the American and British dramatic worlds, but English actors generally came home laden with dollars. He instanced the case of Macready and others, and said that almost all of the American actors in England shared the fate of Forrest, who went home with only a dead emblem of leaves suggesting his name. Several Americans had lost heavily on the London season, some $10,000 and others $125,000. On that point he could speak with authority, though he was not anxious to claim credit for his experiences; indeed, he wished he were less well informed.

Notice.

To Policy Holders in Old Line Companies: Beware of the confidence game played by the pious Insurance Agent who wants to do you the favor of switching you from your company to his. All companies write numerous plans of insurance and every plan costs a different price. You get value received for any plan you buy, from any Old Line Company. When the confidence man shows you a plan differing from the one you have, which is part of the game, and should you prefer this particular plan write to the Agent or Company who insured you and get it, and thereby save what you paid. Don't be an easy mark. There are millions of dollars lost each year by policyholders being duped by confidence men.

PUBLISHED EVERY TUESDAY AND FRIDAY
GEO. D. MITCHELL, — EDITOR.

MORE people every day are finding out that Roosevelt is President.

LILLIAN NORDICA says the government owes her $3,000,000, but with a full knowledge of Uncle Sam's slowness in paying such claims we advise her to sing for it.

THE Hanna-Foraker struggle for the political mastery in Ohio will inevitably breed another scandal, but one more spot on the leopard will execute no special wonder.

ANDREW CARNEGIE has given $2,000 for the benefit of the widows and children of miners killed in an explosion. This is said to be his first contribution to plain charity.

OIL men, oil promoters and capitalists are going to Beaumont, Tex., to engage in a general conference as to the method of operating their companies in the face of the stringent anti-trust laws.

It is a pity that the President did not go hunting just before he wrote the trust portion of his message. The excitement of the chase might have put more strenuously into his discussion of the trust question.

EIGHT girls in the Industrial School for Girls at Indianapolis started a riot Friday, and broke windows and destroyed other property, and were only subdued after being soaked with water from the fire hose.

THE Governor of New York State is disturbed by the fact that several New York city officials receive salaries larger than his. However, this is one of those paradoxical cases in which a part is greater than the whole.

IRONTON (Mo.) Register: When the Democratic party entered upon its fight against monopoly, it was stirred to its depths. A condition of ferment was created that will eventually force every friend of monopoly out of its ranks. When it gets rid of this element it will begin to draw new recruits.

THE death of President McKinley did not cast a shadow of sorrow over the White House gaities during Christmas, for President Roosevelt did the can-can in style and when it came to the cake-walk he did so well that the old servant had to remark: "He su'linly made dem other white folks pick up dey feet."—Georgetown News.

CENSUS statistics on trust show that on May 31, 1900, there were 183 combinations with capitalization of over $3,000,000,000. The product of these combinations in 1900 was equivalent to 20 per cent of the total gross products of all the manufacturing industries of the country in 1890. They controlled over 2,000 plants and employed over 300,000 wage-earners and over 24,000 salaried officials and clerks.

EX-GOVERNOR BRADLEY and Senator Deboe are announced to be on friendly terms, though what there is for them to be friendly about in Kentucky is not instantly visible. In the present state of Democratic health in the Old Commonwealth they might as well be at swords' point for all there is "in it" for either of them. However, it is easier to be amiable when there are no spoils at stake, and Governor Bradley can at least refrain from starting funny stories about the Senator's parts of speech.—Georgetown News.

To the Public.

Having sold my interest in my store to Geo. W. Spears and H. T. Brent, I wish to thank my friends for their patronage and kindness in past years and sincerely hope that they will be as liberal with these two young men. Assuring you that I will appreciate any favors you may show them, I am,
Respectfully, NEWTON MITCHELL.

There Are Some of the Same Kind in Paris.

There are twenty-six widows in Owenton and at least twenty-six more married women who would be far better off if they were widows. We are well acquainted with some of their husbands and we know whereof we speak. They let their wives hoe the garden in the spring time and summer season and milk the cows and make the fires in winter.—Owenton News-Herald

No More Trip Permits.

The preachers may travel at half-rates over the railroads in the future, but they will have to go to more trouble than heretofore. Up to this time ministers could obtain trip permits in addition to annual and time permits. The new rules entirely abolish the one-half rate tickets to preachers except to holders of regular annual and time certificates and the use of trip permits has been discontinued.

You Do, or You Don't Need Glasses

The eye being a rather delicate organ, great care should be exercised in the selection of proper glasses. Many believe that glasses should be resorted to only when the sight becomes so defective as not to be able to do without. This is a great mistake which must be combated. Whenever there is unmistakable evidence of the need of their aid, they should be used. A neglect of this rule sometimes produces mischief which results in serious trouble if the course be persisted in.

Our Dr. C. H. Bowen having just returned from taking a special course in Optics from one of the best specialists in New York, is prepared to do the best of work, having the latest improved methods of fitting. Examinations free. Next visit Wednesday, Jan. 8, 1902.

THE WAR TO CONTINUE

Gen. Botha Requests the Boers to Keep on Fighting.

Lord Kitchener Accepts the Offer of Five Canadian Nurses and Asks For Scouts to Be Sent with the Contingent.

Johannesburg, Jan. 4.—Gen. Botha has sent a note to all Boer commandos requesting them to keep on fighting, for the British parliament is to be asked for another war vote, which will induce the British nation to demand that the war in South Africa be stopped.

Pretoria, Jan. 4.—Gen. Dewet has ordered the Boer commandos to retard the work of extending the British block houses at any cost. Further fighting may consequently be expected.

Gen. Bruce Hamilton has captured another Boer laager, and 22 prisoners on the Swaziland border.

Ottawa, Ont., Jan. 4.—Lord Kitchener cabled the governor general of Canada accepting the offer of five Canadian nurses for South Africa. Lord Kitchener asked also that some scouts be sent along with the contingent which is now being organized.

London, Jan. 4.—Lord Roberts has issued an official contradiction of the stories circulated on the continent of the violation of Boer women by the British troops in South Africa, and the employment of Boer female refugees for immoral purposes.

Paris, Jan. 4.—The Courier du Soir publishes another report Friday evening to the effect that the United States is preparing the way for intervention by the powers in South Africa.

WORLD'S SHIP-BUILDING.

Total Number Built During 1900 Was 319 Sailing and 966 Steam Vessels.

Washington, Jan. 4.—The state department has received from Consul Monaghan, at Chemnitz, under date of November 27, a report on the world's ship-building for 1900. The total number of vessels of 100 registered tons and over built during that year, according to German returns, was 319 sailing and 966 steam vessels, with a total tonnage of 2,268,938. England and her colonies head the list of ship-building countries at the close of 1900, with 698 ships, and the United States ranks next with 197, and then follow Germany with 90, France with 65, and Italy with 27.

FRIGHTFUL SUICIDE.

A Bohemian Man Blew Himself to Pieces With Dynamite.

Morris, Ill., Jan. 4.—There was a frightful suicide at Coal City, ten miles southeast of this city. Joseph H. Bovine, a leader among the Bohemians in the coal fields, had trouble with his wife in the morning. He brooded over the matter till afternoon when he went to the village and secured a stick of dynamite. On his return he went back of his barn and, lying on his back, placed the dynamite beneath his vest. With his hands he struck the cap and exploded the dynamite. The explosion tore a great hole in the earth and blew the man's body into countless pieces.

DIED A REAR ADMIRAL.

Capt. Richard P. Leary Appointed a Day Before His Death.

Boston, Jan. 4.—Information from Washington shows that Capt. Richard P. Leary, U. S. N., who died at Chelsea recently, died a rear admiral, without being conscious of the fact. It was a promotion which he had looked for, and it is said to have been the one thing which troubled him in his last moments. The appointment was made the day before he died, but it was only when his brother-in-law, Dr. Fairfax Irwin, returned from his funeral at Annapolis to Chelsea, that the appointment was found.

NEW BATTLESHIP MAINE.

She Will Likely Be Placed in Commission By February 15, 1903.

Washington, Jan. 4.—The new battleship Maine is 78 per cent. completed, according to the report received at the navy department. This is such a rapid advance on the new ship that naval officials are satisfied she can be placed in commission by February 15, 1903, which is the fifth anniversary of the sinking of the former battleship Maine in Havana harbor.

To Invite Roosevelt to Chicago.

Chicago, Jan. 4.—President Roosevelt will be invited to visit this city as the guest of the three leading republican clubs of Chicago. This was agreed upon when representatives of the Marquette, Hamilton and Lincoln clubs gathered in the banquet room of the latter and took concerted action.

Elevated Railway for Philadelphia.

New York, Jan. 4.—Plans for a proposed elevated railway for Philadelphia have been practically completed. It is reported that J. Pierpont Morgan will finance the Philadelphia company. Electricity will be the motive power of the road.

Sampson and Long Not Related.

Washington, Jan. 4.—Secretary Long has answered a question asked him by J. W. Flickinger, of Clyde, O., by denying a report that he and Sampson are brothers-in-law. Their nearest ancestors, he adds, are Adam and Eve.

SECRETARY SHAW.

The New Head of the Treasury at the National Capital.

Washington, Jan. 4.—Gov. Leslie M. Shaw, of Iowa, who is to succeed Hon. Lyman J. Gage as secretary of the treasury, arrived in Washington Friday night. He is staying at the Arlington hotel, and had been there but a short time when, in response to a message from the white house, he walked to the president's home and remained with him until after 9 o'clock. Later he called on Speaker Henderson. He had a more extended conference with the president Saturday. Gov. Shaw accorded a hearty greeting to the group of newspaper men who were waiting him in the hotel lobby after his return from the white house. He was non-communicative, however, when asked leading questions about matters of financial policy.

Saturday he conferred with Secretary Gage as to the latter's wishes in surrendering the secretaryship of the treasury. The governor said he would be ready to assume the office by the 22d or 23d of January, but he would suit the date largely to Mr. Gage's wishes in the matter.

"My experience has been that when a man has decided to quit an office," said the governor, "he is jealous of the hours he has to stay. I can come any time, but will leave the date to the present secretary. President Roosevelt has left the arrangements for the change practically to Mr. Gage."

The governor will remain here several days.

THE PRESIDENT'S DAUGHTER.

Miss Alice Roosevelt Formally Presented to Washington Society.

Washington, Jan. 4.—Miss Alice Roosevelt, the eldest daughter of President and Mrs. Roosevelt, was formally presented to Washington society at a ball given in her honor at the white house. About 500 guests in all were present, many of whom either were cousins of the Roosevelts or well-known society people living outside of Washington. Miss Roosevelt is the first white house debutante since 1873, when Miss Nellie Grant, the daughter of President Grant, was presented to society at a ball which was the gayest social event of the decade. This entertainment was given a personal rather than an official character by Mrs. Roosevelt, whose wish was that Miss Roosevelt should make her debut much as though it had taken place in her own private home rather than in the white house. There was no cotillion and consequently no favors.

When the ball was opened the interior of the white house was most attractive; never before have the floral decorations been more beautiful.

Miss Roosevelt was the recipient of many floral pieces of beautiful design, sent to her in honor of her "coming out" day.

The president enjoyed the occasion heartily, and mingled freely among the young folks.

DOUBLE RAILWAY WRECK.

Three Trains Piled Up in Wreckage Near Johnstown, Pa.

Johnstown, Pa., Jan. 4.—Three trains were piled up in a wreck just west of "S. Q." tower on the Pennsylvania railroad, about seven miles west of this city. One man was killed and four badly injured, several others sustaining slight injuries. The killed and injured were railroaders.

There were two wrecks. The first was caused by train No. 14, an east-bound mail and express train that carries through passengers from Pittsburgh to New York, running into a side track on which was standing an east-bound freight train. The wreckage was piled up high over the tracks and before flagmen could be sent out, Train 1, one of the fastest westbound freight trains on the Pittsburgh division, ran into the wreckage and much of the debris was tumbled down into the Conemaugh river.

It was at first arranged to bring the injured men to the Cambria hospital in this city Saturday morning, but they were taken to a Pittsburgh institution.

TURKISH TROOPS MUTINY.

The Commandant of the Garrison and Governor of the Province Flogged.

London, Jan. 4.—The correspondent of the Daily Mail at Cairo says in a dispatch that several hundred half-starved Turkish troops mutinied at Bayrut, Syria, last Sunday, and demanded their arrears of pay. They attacked the governor of the province and the commandant of the garrison and flogged them. The mutineers also repulsed the cavalry sent to rescue the officials.

Distribution of Fish and Fish Eggs.

Washington, Jan. 4.—An increase of over 9,000,000 in the fish and fish eggs distributed by the government throughout the country, and a marked decline in lobster fishing are shown in the annual report of United States Commissioner of Fisheries Bowers for the last fiscal year.

Denied Any Attempt at Suicide.

New York, Jan. 4.—John Pinovar, of Middletown, N. Y., arrested on the charge of having attempted suicide in jumping from the Brooklyn bridge recently, was discharged from custody. He denied any attempt at suicide, but left his motive unexplained.

Boy Murderer Sentenced.

WENT TO THE BOTTOM

Steamer Walla Walla Sank and Many Lives Lost.

The Number of Lost on the Unfortunate Steamship Is Placed at 42—One Life Raft Is Still Unaccounted For.

San Francisco, Jan. 4.—The collision at sea early Thursday morning between the steamship Walla Walla and an unknown sailing vessel resulted in the sinking of the steamer and the probable loss of at least 20 lives. The Walla Walla, owned by the Pacific Coast Steamship Co., sailed from San Francisco January 1 for Puget Sound ports. She carried 36 first-class passengers, 28 second-class and a crew of 80 men. When off Cape Mendocino on the California coast at 4:10 Thursday morning an iron bark, believed to be French, loomed up in the haze and crashed into the Walla Walla's bow. Then the sailing vessel slid off into the darkness and was seen no more.

All the passengers and crew of the Walla Walla, except the few on watch, were asleep, but were aroused by the collision. Steerage quarters were in the bow and it is believed that some steerage passengers and crew were crushed to death. A big hole was made in the steamer's bow. She sank in 35 minutes. The officers and crew maintained strict discipline and boats and life rafts were lowered. All who were not killed in the collision got off except Capt. Hall, who went down with his ship. He was picked up later by one of the boats, uninjured, with the exception of a few bruises.

There was a choppy sea running and the small boats could not make a landing on the shore, a few miles distant. They drifted about all day and finally 65 people were picked up by the steamer Dispatch, which took them to Eureka. Another boat under command of Engineer Brown and containing 13 persons attempted to land at Trinidad and was swamped. John Wilkinson, quartermaster; William Martel, fireman; L. Drube, passenger, and three unknown men were drowned. Those in the boat who were saved were Engineer Brown, Fireman John McClellan, Cook Passer Wm. Shinn, Sailor O'Leary, Chief Cook Marshall and passengers Wm. B. Smith and William Moorehouse.

When the Dispatch reached Eureka Friday morning with the survivors they were immediately sent out for missing boats. The tug Ranger picked up one containing 11 passengers and three of the crew.

The Walla Walla was valued at about $250,000. She was formerly used as a collier, and about ten years ago was converted into a passenger vessel at a cost of $175,000. The vessel was insured for about $200,000.

San Francisco, Jan. 6.—The French bark Max, which collided with the steamship Walla Walla early Thursday morning, was towed to this city in a badly disabled condition. The Max's bowsprit was carried away and her bow was stove in both above and below the water line. Her water-tight compartments alone were keeping her afloat. Ninety-two survivors of the Walla Walla arrived here Sunday from Eureka on the steamer Pomona. There is still some discrepancy in the list of dead and missing. The number ranges from 37 to 47. This discrepancy is due to the fact that several passengers boarded the vessel just as she was leaving port. Others who were traveling second-class gave assumed names in order to hide their identity. By striking out what reports duplicate the number of lost stands at 42, classed as follows: Known dead, 9; missing, passengers, 13; crew, 20. One life raft is unaccounted for and it is feared all the missing are lost.

Rev. Henry Frickson lost his wife and three children.

VENEZUELAN REVOLUTION.

A Bomb Exploded at the Residence of the Minister of Finance.

Willemstad, Curacao, Jan. 6.—(Via Haytien Cable.)—A report has reached here that Saturday evening a bomb was exploded at the residence at Caracas, of the Venezuelan minister of finance, Tello Mendoza. The explosion wrecked a considerable portion of the house, but no one was injured. The attempt has caused considerable excitement in Caracas.

Gen. Juan Pietri (who has been active in the present revolution against President Castro), and who was arrested Friday at Antimano, was Saturday paraded as a prisoner on the plaza de Bolivar at Caracas. Gen. Pietri is still hostile to Gen. Castro and he is also opposed to Gen. Matos.

Almost all the Venezuelan revolutionists who have lately been here have left this island to join insurgent bodies in Venezuela. Gen. Riera (who left here last Thursday to join insurgent forces on the Venezuelan coast near Vela de Coro and who unexpectedly returned two days later) is still here.

The Chicago Crew Won.

Villefranche, Jan. 4.—The rowing match between the gigs of the United States cruiser Chicago, and the United States gunboat Nashville, for a prize of £1,600, distance three miles, was won by the Chicago crew by three lengths.

Cholera in Java.

Tacoma, Wash., Jan. 4.—Col. E. F. Hand, a New York mining engineer, who returned from Java, says that cholera is sweeping away thousands. There were 7,000 deaths in the city of Sourabaya alone during November.

A PRO-BOER MEETING.

Four Thousand People Assembled in the Gray's Armory, Cleveland.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 6.—Four thousand people attended a pro-Boer meeting in the Gray's armory Sunday afternoon. There was enthusiastic reception and encouragement for the struggling Boers. When the committee in charge of the meeting learned that Hon. Wm. J. Bryan was in the city an invitation was sent to him and the mayor to attend and address the gathering. Both gentlemen accepted and when, towards the close of their speeches, Mr. Bryan and Mr. Johnson entered the hall the whole audience rose en masse and repeatedly shouted the names of "Bryan" and "Johnson" and greeted them with hurrahs and hand-clapping.

The tri-color of the Boer republics was a prominent feature of the armory's decorations and little streamers were tied in the buttonholes of many of the men. Upon the stage were seven native Boers who had been in some of the early conflicts of their countrymen against the English forces. They were driven from the country and are now residing in this city.

The meeting continued for four hours, the principal address being by Hon. John J. Lentz. Rev. August Franz, a local Reformed Lutheran clergyman, also spoke.

A resolution of great length was passed and will be sent to the president of the United States. The resolution calls the attention of the president to the continuance of the war for the past two years and states that it has been characterized, on the part of the British, as a conflict of savagery by the confiscation or destruction of property of inhabitants and non-combatants lying within the zone of war.

HIGH PRICE OF FEEDSTUFFS.

Horses and Milch Cows Killed to Prevent Death By Starvation.

San Antonio, Tex., Jan. 6.—On account of the almost total failure of grass and the high price of feedstuffs in this section, over 100 head of horses and milch cows have been killed in San Antonio during the past 60 days to prevent them from dying from starvation, their owners, who are of the poorer classes, being unable to buy feed for the animals. There has been a drought in this section for 12 months or more and there is no present prospect for an improvement.

THE BRITISH COLONIES.

The United States Is Rapidly Increasing Her Trade With Them.

London, Jan. 6.—Statistics just issued, showing that of the total trade with her colonies, Great Britain only possesses 42 per cent. whilst the United States has 12 per cent., and that the latter is rapidly increasing her trade, not only with Canada, but with Australia, causes some disquietude. The Standard, in an editorial, expresses its disappointment in this regard and insists upon the necessity of the country bestirring itself.

HEAD-ON COLLISION.

Three Trains Killed and a Number of Freight Cars Destroyed.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 6.—As the result of a head-on collision between two freight trains of the Southern railway early Sunday morning near Rex, Ga., 14 miles from this place, three trains were killed and a number of freight cars destroyed by fire. The two trains met on a sharp curve, the derailed cars catching fire. The collision, it is said, was caused by a disregarding of signals by the crew of one of the two trains.

PALO ALTO STOCK FARM.

All the Horses There Will Be Put on the Market.

Palo Alto, Cal., Jan. 6.—Orders have been issued to sell all the horses on the Palo Alto stock farm. Only ten of the most famous brood mares will be retained, Mary Osborn, Beautiful Bells, Monetti Maxena, Wild Flower, Manganata, Rendana, Esther, Lady Ellen and Elaine. The stock farm, which was established in 1877, holds the world's trotting record in 1892, and has produced many of the world's most famous race horses. Two hundred and fifty head will be put on the market.

A New Light.

New York, Jan. 6.—It is announced, according to the Herald, that Peter Cooper Hewitt, the grandson of the philanthropist and millionaire, has invented a new light which in some ways revolutionizes illuminating methods.

Will Get His Shield.

The Monitor Terror.

Philadelphia, Jan. 6.—The United States monitor Terror left the League Island navy yard Sunday in tow of the government tug Samoset, for Annapolis. The old monitor will be used there as a training vessel.

UNITED STATES SENATOR THURSTON,

The Brilliant Statesman from Nebraska, Makes an Important Public Utterance.

INTERIOR OF UNITED STATES SENATE CHAMBER.

Ex-Senator John M. Thurston, of Omaha, Nebraska, is one of the most prominent and influential men in the country. He made the speech nominating President McKinley at the St. Louis convention, and was made permanent Chairman of this convention. He was also Chairman of the convention that re-nominated President McKinley at Philadelphia. He was recently appointed by President McKinley Chairman of the St. Louis Exposition Commission.

This prominent gentleman recently wrote the following letter to The Peruna Medicine Co., of Columbus, Ohio:

Washington, D. C., April 6, 1901.

"I have used Peruna at various times during the past year or two with most satisfactory results.

"It entirely relieved me from an irritating cough—the result of excessive effort in the presidential campaign, and I am a firm believer in its efficacy for any such trouble."—Jno. M. Thurston.

Catarrh has already become a national curse. Its ravages extend from ocean to ocean.

More than one-half of the people are affected by it. It has become such a serious matter that it has passed the boundaries of the medical profession and become a national question. Senators are talking about it; Congressmen are discussing it.

They are not only considering the extent and chronic nature of the disease, but the possibility of finding a national remedy to meet this national calamity.

The catarrh remedy, Peruna, seems to be the main expectation in this direction.

Dr. Hartman, President of the Hartman Sanitarium, devised the remedy, Peruna, over forty years ago, and the remedy as a catarrh cure has been

The Force of Habit.

An amusing instance of force of habit is reported in England. A lady walking in the country with a brother lately returned from the front was greatly alarmed, not at the sound of blasting from a neighboring quarry, but at her brother's falling flat to the ground at the instant. She, of course, assumed that he had been injured; but it turned out that he had been in the habit, for months, by order, of prostrating himself on the veldt at the sound of a gun. Mechanical obedience of this kind has been effectively utilized in the case of suspected deserters. An abrupt shout of "Halt" brings any man who was lately in the ranks to a sudden standstill.

Cheap Railroad Fare.

India is the land of cheap railway traveling. The returns of the East India railway show that in 12 months 18,500,000 passengers used the line and that of these 17,000,000 traveled third or lowest class. The cost of carrying was one-eighth of a penny per mile, and the charge to the passengers was a little more than one farthing. Great as is the difference between the cost of transit by this line and parliamentary or even workmen's rates, the comparison between incomes of the lowest class of passengers in India and Great Britain is still greater. The average monthly income of the former in shillings corresponds with the number of pounds earned by the latter in a like period.

Too Few Women.

One hears so much about "surplus women" that it is rather refreshing to learn of places where there are so few that they are actually clamored for. It is said that in the province of Manitoba there is so small a proportion that the colonists complain that homes are impossible for lack of wives.

The Lost Continent

By CUTCLIFFE HYNÉ.

Published by Harper & Bros.

Copyright, 1900, by Cutcliffe Hyné.

This story of "The Lost Continent" is the translation of an ancient manuscript found in a cave in the Canary Islands. It was written upon a peculiar substance, each sheet made up of two parts. One side resembled talc, and over the other side was spread a coating of dark coffee-colored material that resembled wax. A liberal translation gives the following story:

CHAPTER I.

MY RECALL.

The public official reception was over. The sentence had been read, the name of Phorenice the empress adored, and the new viceroy installed with all that vast and ponderous ceremonial which had gained its pomp and majesty from the ages. Formally, I had delivered up the reins of my government; formally, Tatho had seated himself on the snake-throne, and had put over his neck the chain of gems which symbolized the supreme office; and then, while the drums and the trumpets made their proclamation of clamor, he had risen to his feet for his first state progress round that gilded council chamber, as viceroy of the Province of Yucatan.

With folded arms and bended head I followed him between the glittering lines of soldiers, and the brilliant throng of courtiers, and chiefs, and statesmen. The roof-beams quivered to the cries of "Long live Tatho!" "Flourish the empress!" which came forth as in duty bound, and the new ruler acknowledged the welcome with stately inclinations of the head. In turn he went to the three lesser thrones of the lesser governors—in the east, the north, and the south, and received homage from each as the ritual was; and I, the man whom his coming had deposed, followed with the prescribed meekness in his train.

It was a hard task, but we who hold the higher offices learn to carry before the people a passionless face. Once, 20 years before, these same fine obeisances had been made to me; now the gods had seen fit to make fortune change. But as I walked bent and humbly on behind the heels of Tatho, though etiquette forbade noisy salutations to myself, it could not inhibit kindly glances, and these came from every soldier, every courtier, and every chief who stood there in that gilded hall, and they fell upon me very gratefully. It is not often that the fallen meet such tender looks.

Then, one behind the other, the new viceroy and the old, we marched with formal step over golden tiles of that council hall beneath the pyramid, and the great officers of state left their stations and joined in our train; and at the farther wall we came to the door of those private chambers which an hour ago had been mine own.

Ah, well! I had no home now in any of those wondrous cities of Yucatan, and I could not help feeling a bitterness, though in sooth I should have been thankful enough to return to the continent of Atlantis with my head still in its proper station.

Tatho gave his formal summons of "Open ye to the Viceroy," which the ritual commands, and the slaves within sent the massive stone valves of the door gaping wide. Tatho entered, I at his heels; the others halted, sending valedictions from the threshold; and the valves of the door clanged on the lock behind us. We passed on to the chamber beyond, and then, when for the first time we were alone together, and the forced etiquette of courts was behind us, the new viceroy turned with meekly folded arms, and bowed low before me.

"Deucalion," he said, "believe me that I have not sought this office. It was thrust upon me. Had I not accepted, my head would have paid forfeit, and another man—your enemy—would have been sent out as viceroy in your place. The empress does not permit that her will shall ever be questioned."

"My friend," I made answer, "my brother in all but blood, there is no man living in all Atlantis or her territories to whom I had liefer hand over my government. For 20 years now have I ruled this country of Yucatan, and Mexico beyond, first under the old king, and then as minister to this new empress. I know my colony like a book. I am intimate with all her wonderful cities, with their palaces, their pyramids, and their peoples. I have hunted the beasts and the savages in the forests. I have built roads, and made the rivers so that they may carry shipping. I have fostered the arts and crafts like a merchant; I have discoursed, three times each day, the cult of the gods with mine own lips. Through evil years and through good have I ruled here, striving only for the prosperity of the land and the strengthening of Atlantis, and I have grown to love the peoples like a father. To you I bequeath them, Tatho, with tender supplications for their interest."

"It is not I that can carry on Deucalion's work with Deucalion's power, but rest content, my friend, that I shall do my humble best to follow exactly on in your footsteps. Believe me, I came out to this government with a thousand regrets, but I would have died sooner than take your place had I known how vigorously the supplanting would trouble you."

"We are alone here," I said, "away from the formalities of formal assemblies, and a man may give vent to his natural self without fear of tarnishing a ceremony. Your coming was something of the suddenest. Till an hour ago, when you demanded audience, I had thought to rule on longer; and even now I do not know for what cause I am deposed."

"The proclamation said: 'We relieve our well-beloved Deucalion of his present service, because we have great need of his powers at home in our kingdom of Atlantis.'"

"A mere formality."

Tatho looked uneasily round the hangings of the chamber, and drew me with him to its center, and lowered his voice.

"I do not think so," he whispered. "I believe she has need of you. There are troublous times on hand, and Phorenice wants the ablest men in the kingdom ready to her call."

"You may speak openly," I said, "and without fear of eavesdroppers. We are in the heart of the pyramid here, built in every way by a man's length of solid stone. Myself, I oversaw the laying of every course. And besides, here in Yucatan, we have not the niceties of your old-world diplomacy, and do not listen, because we count it shame to do so."

Tatho shrugged his shoulders. "I acted only according to mine education. At home, a loose tongue makes a loose head, and there are those whose trade it is to carry tales. Still, what I say is this: The throne shakes, and Phorenice sees the need of sturdy props. So she has sent this proclamation."

"But why come to me? It is 20 years since I sailed to this colony, and from that day I have not returned to Atlantis once. I know little of the old country's politics. What small parcel of news drifts out to us across the ocean reads with slender interest here. Yucatan is another world, my Tatho, as you in the course of your government will learn, with new interests, new people, new everything. To us here Atlantis is only a figment, a shadow, far away across the waters. It is for this new world of Yucatan that I have striven through all these years."

"If Deucalion has small time to spare from his government for brooding over his fatherland, Atlantis, at least, has found leisure to admire the deeds of her brilliant son. Why, sir, over yonder at home, your name carries magic with it. When you and I were lads together, it was the custom in the colleges to teach that the men of the past were the greatest this world has ever seen; but to-day this teaching is changed. It is Deucalion who is held up as the model and example. Mothers name their sons Deucalion, as the most valuable birth-gift they can make. Deucalion is a household word. Indeed, there is only one name that is near to it in familiarity."

"You trouble me," I said, frowning. "I have tried to do my duty for its own sake, and for the country's sake, not for the patting and fondlings of the vulgar. And besides, if there are names to be in every one's mouth, they should be the names of the gods."

Tatho shrugged his shoulders. "The gods? They occupy us very little these latter years. With our modern science, we have grown past the tether of the old gods, and no new one has appeared. No, my Lord Deucalion, if it were merely the gods who were your competitors on men's lips, your name would be a thousand times the better known."

"Of mere human names," I said, "the name of this new empress should come first in Atlantis, our lord the old king being now dead."

"She certainly would have it so," replied Tatho; and there was something in his tone which made me see that more was meant behind the words. I drew him to one of the marble seats, and bent myself familiarly toward him. "I am speaking," I said, "not of the new viceroy of Yucatan, but to my old friend Tatho, a member of the priests' clan, like myself, with whom I worked side by side in a score of the smaller home governments, in hamlets, in villages, in smaller towns, in greater towns, as we gained experience in war and knowledge in the art of ruling people, and so tediously won our promotion. I am speaking in Tatho's private abode, that was mine own not two hours since, and I would have an answer with that plainness which we always then used to one another."

The new viceroy sighed whimsically. "I almost forget how to speak in plain words now," he said. "We have grown so polished in these latter days, that mere bald truth would be hissed as indecate. But for the memory of those early years, when we expended as much law and thought over the ownership of a hay-bay as we should now over the fate of a rebellious city, I will try and speak plain to you even now, Deucalion. Tell me, old friend, what is it?"

"What of this new empress?"

He frowned. "I might have guessed your subject," he said.

"Then speak upon it. Tell me of all the changes that have been made."

What has this Phorenice done to make her throne unstable in Atlantis?"

Tatho frowned still. "If I did not know you to be as honest as our Lord the Sun, your questions would carry mischief with them. Phorenice has a short way with those who are daring enough to discuss her politics for other purposes than politely to praise them."

"You can leave me ignorant if you wish," I said, with a touch of chill. This Tatho seemed to be different from the Tatho I had known at home—Tatho my workmate, Tatho who had read with me in the college of priests, who had run with me in many a furious charge, who had labored with me so heavily that the peoples under us might prosper. But he was quick enough to see my change of tone.

"You force me back to my old self," he said, with a half-smile, "though it is hard enough to forget the caution one has learned during this last 20 years, even when speaking with you. Still, whatever may have happened to the rest of us, it is clear to see that you at least have not changed, and, old friend, I am ready to trust you with my life if you ask it. In fact, you do ask me that very thing when you tell me to speak all I know of Phorenice."

I nodded. This was more like the old times, when there was full confidence between us. "The gods will it now that I return to Atlantis," I said, "and what happens after that the gods alone know. But it would be of service to me if I could land on her shores with some knowledge of this Phorenice, for at present I am as ignorant concerning her as some savage from Europe or mid-Africa."

"What would you have me tell?"

"Tell all. I know only that she, a woman, reigns, where, by the ancient law of the land, a man should rule; that she is not even of the priestly clan from which the law says all rulers must be drawn; and that, from what you say, she has caused the throne to totter."

The throne was as firm as the everlasting hills in the old king's day, Tatho.

"History has moved with pace since then, and Phorenice has spurred it. You know her origin?"

"I know only the exact little I have told you."

"She was a swineherd's daughter from the mountains, though this is never even whispered now, as she has declared herself to be a daughter of the gods, with a miraculous birth and upbringing. As she has decreed it a sacrilege to question this parentage, and has ordered to be burned all those that seem to recollect her more earthly origin, the fable passes current for truth. You see the faith I put in you, Deucalion, by telling you what you wish to learn."

"There has always been trust between us."

"I know; but this habit of suspicion is hard to cast off, even with you. However, let me put your good faith between me and the torture further. Zaemon, you remember, was governor of the swineherd's province, and Zaemon's wife saw Phorenice and took her away to adopt and bring up as her own. It is said that the swineherd and his women objected; perhaps they did; anyway, I know they died; and Phorenice was taught the arts and graces, and brought up as a daughter of the Priestly clan."

"But still she was an adopted daughter only," I objected.

"The omission of the 'adopted' was her will at an early age," said Tatho, dryly, "and she learned early to have her wishes carried into fact. It was notorious that before she had grown to 15 years she ruled not only the women of the household, but Zaemon also, and the province that was beyond Zaemon."

"Zaemon was learned," I said, "and a devout follower of the gods, and searcher into the higher mysteries; but, as a ruler, he was always a flabby fellow."

"I do not say that opportunities have not come usefully in Phorenice's way, but she had genius as well. For her to have raised herself at all from what she was, was remarkable. Not one woman out of a thousand, placed as she was, would have grown to be as high as a mere wife of some sturdy countryman, who was sufficiently simple to care nothing for pedigree. But look at Phorenice: it was her whim to take exercise as a man-at-arms and practice with all the utensils of war; and then, before anyone quite knows how or why it happened, a rebellion had broken out in the province, and here was she, a slip of a girl, leading Zaemon's troops."

"Zaemon, when I knew him, was a mere derision in the field."

"Hear me on. Phorenice put down the rebellion in masterly fashion, and gave the conquered a choice between sword and service. They fell into her ranks at once, and were faithful to her from that moment. I tell you, Deucalion, there is a marvelous fascination about the woman."

Worth More Than Advice. A little assistance is worth a lot of advice.—Ram's Horn.

AN ACTIVE CAMPAIGN

Gen. Bell Now Conducting a Vigorous Warfare in Batangas.

Conditions in the Island of Samar Are Still Unsettled Owing to the Difficulty of Finding the Insurgents.

Manila, Jan. 6.—Gen. J. Franklin Bell is conducting a vigorous campaign in Batangas province. Every available soldier is in the field. The columns under the command of Col. Wint and Dougherty are doing excellent work and driving the Filipinos in all directions. A number of the latter are fleeing to Tayabas province, where the native constabulary are rendering valuable assistance in capturing men and rifles.

The advocates of peace at Manila deprecate the stern measures employed by Gen. Bell. In reply Gen. Bell says the peace advocates have had numerous opportunities to use their influence, as they have been given passes through the American lines almost for the asking, and that it has been afterwards proved that they often only went through the lines for the purpose of assisting the insurrection. Gen. Bell says that the best peace method now is a rigorous warfare until the insurrection is completely subdued.

The arrest of members of the wealthy Lopez family and the confiscation of their steamers and rice, as well as the arrest of three members of the religious corporations, who were known to be instigators of the insurrection, has had an excellent effect upon the natives.

Conditions in the Island of Samar are unsettled owing to the difficulty of finding the insurgents. Capt. Schoeffel, of the 9th infantry, who was wounded in a severe hand-to-hand fight last month at Dapdap, Samar island, between 18 men of Company E, of his regiment, and a large force of Solomons, has practically recovered from the effects of his wound. In an official report of the encounter in which Capt. Schoeffel was hurt, it is said that Schoeffel killed three men before he received his wound, and that the remainder of the detachment of the 18 men were saved by his personal courage and daring.

William Feagus, the colored butler, who was attending the fires under the boiler at the time of the explosion, was frightfully scalded and badly cut about the hands and face. His condition is critical. A rough estimate of the damage places it at $10,000 or more.

"A pill's a pill," says the saw. But there are pills and pills. You want a pill which is certain, thorough and gentle. Mustn't gripe. DeWitt's Little Early Risers fill the bill. Purely vegetable. Getting Thin is all right, if you are too fat; and all wrong, if too thin already.

Fat, enough for your habit, is healthy; a little more, or less, is no great harm. Too fat, consult a doctor; too thin, persistently thin, no matter what cause, take Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil.

There are many causes of getting too thin; they all come under these two heads: over-work and under-digestion.

Stop over-work, if you can; but, whether you can or not, take Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, to balance yourself with your work. You can't live on it—true—but, by it, you can. There's a limit, however; you'll pay for it.

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil is the readiest cure for "can't eat," unless it comes of your doing no work—you can't long be well and strong, without some sort of activity.

The genuine has this picture on it, take no other.

If you have not tried it, send for a free sample, its agreeable taste will surprise you.

Scrofula

THE OFFSPRING OF HEREDITARY BLOOD TAIN.

Scrofula is but a modified form of Blood Poison and Consumption. The parent who is tainted by either will see in the child the same disease manifesting itself in the form of swollen glands of the neck and throat, catarrh, weak eyes, offensive sores and abscesses and oftentimes white swelling—sure signs of Scrofula. There may be no external signs for a long time, for the disease develops slowly in some cases, but the poison is in the blood and will break out at the first favorable opportunity. S. S. S. cures this wasting, destructive disease by first purifying and building up the blood and stimulating and invigorating the whole system.

J. M. Seale, 115 Public Square, Nashville, Tenn., says: "Ten years ago my daughter fell and cut the side of her face became swollen and burst. Some of the best doctors here and elsewhere attended her without any benefit. We decided to try S. S. S., and a few bottles cured her entirely."

It makes new and pure blood to nourish and strengthen the body, and is a positive and safe cure for Scrofula.

It overcomes all forms of blood poison, whether inherited or acquired, and no remedy so thoroughly and effectively cleanses the blood. If you have any blood trouble, or your child has inherited some blood taint, take S. S. S. and get the blood in good condition and prevent the disease doing further damage.

Send for our free book and write our physicians about your case. We make no charge whatever for medical advice.

ARE YOU DEAF? ANY HEAD NOISES?

ALL CASES OF DEAFNESS OR HARD HEARING ARE NOW CURABLE

by our new invention. Only those born deaf are incurable. HEAD NOISES CEASE IMMEDIATELY.

F. A. WERMAN, OF BALTIMORE, SAYS:

BALTIMORE, Md., March 30, 1901.

Gentlemen:—Being entirely cured of deafness, thanks to your treatment, I will now give you a full history of my case, to be used at your discretion.

About five years ago my right ear began to ring, and this kept on getting worse, until I lost my hearing in this ear entirely.

I underwent a treatment for catarrh, for three months, without any success, consulted a number of physicians, among others, the most eminent ear specialist of this city, who told me that only an operation could help me, and even that only temporarily, that the head noises would then cease, but the hearing in the affected ear would be lost forever.

I then saw your advertisement accidentally in a New York paper, and ordered your treatment. After I had used it only a few days according to your directions, the noises ceased, and to-day, after five weeks, my hearing in the diseased ear has been entirely restored. I thank you heartily and beg to remain

Very truly yours,

F. A. WERMAN, 730 S. Broadway, Baltimore, Md.

"I have taken Kodol Dyspepsia Cure and have never used anything in my life that did me the good that did," says County Physician Geo. W. Scroggs, of Hall county, Ga. The parent who is tainted by either will see in the child the same disease manifesting itself in the form of swollen glands of the neck and throat, catarrh, weak eyes, offensive sores and abscesses and oftentimes white swelling—sure signs of Scrofula. There may be no external signs for a long time, for the disease develops slowly in some cases, but the poison is in the blood and will break out at the first favorable opportunity. S. S. S. cures this wasting, destructive disease by first purifying and building up the blood and stimulating and invigorating the whole system.

J. M. Seals, 115 Public Square, Nashville, Tenn., says: "Ten years ago my daughter fell and cut her forehead. From this wound the glands on the side of her face became swollen and burst. Some of the best doctors here and elsewhere attended her without any benefit. We decided to try S. S. S., and a few bottles cured her entirely."

SSS makes new and pure blood to nourish and strengthen the body, and is a positive and safe cure for Scrofula, whether inherited or acquired, and no remedy so thoroughly and effectively cleanses the blood. If you have any blood trouble, or your child has inherited some blood taint, take S. S. S. and get the blood in good condition and prevent the disease doing further damage.

ARE YOU DEAF?

ANY HEAD NOISES?

ALL CASES OF DEAFNESS OR HARD HEARING ARE NOW CURABLE by our new invention. Only those born deaf are incurable. HEAD NOISES CEASE IMMEDIATELY. F. A. WERMAN, OF BALTIMORE, SAYS:

Gentlemen:—Being entirely cured of deafness, thanks to your treatment, I will now give you a full history of my case, to be used at your discretion. About five years ago my right ear began to ring, and this kept on getting worse, until I lost my hearing in this ear entirely. I underwent a treatment for catarrh, for three months, without any success, consulted a number of physicians, among others, the most eminent ear specialist of this city, who told me that only an operation could help me, and even that only temporarily, that the head noises would then cease, but the hearing in the affected ear would be lost forever. I then saw your advertisement accidentally in a New York paper, and ordered your treatment. After I had used it only a few days according to your directions, the noises ceased, and to-day, after five weeks, my hearing in the diseased ear has been entirely restored. I thank you heartily and beg to remain Very truly yours, F. A. WERMAN, 730 S. Broadway, Baltimore, Md.

Women and Jewels.

Jewels, candy, flowers, man—that is the order of a woman's preferences. Jewels form a magnet of mighty power to the average woman. Even the greatest of all jewels, health, is often ruined in the strenuous efforts to make or save the money to purchase them. If a woman will risk her health to get a coveted gem, then let her fortify herself against the insidious consequences of coughs, colds and bronchial affections by the regular use of Dr. Boschee's German Syrup. It will promptly arrest consumption in its early stages and heal the affected lungs and bronchial tubes and drive the dread disease from the system. It is not a cure all but it is a certain cure for coughs, colds and all bronchial troubles. You can get Dr. G. G. Green's reliable remedies at W. T. Brooks'. Get Green's Special Almanac.
